

Burgess Objects to Bus Rerouting

Would Necessitate Widening of Haverford Avenue,
Says Frye.

PLAN TO FILE A PROTEST

Haverford Avenue's traffic congestion was augmented this week when the Montgomery Bus Company rerouted Route "A" of the Philadelphia Suburban Transit Co. westbound on Haverford Avenue, from Narberth to Essex Avenue, passing the Pennsylvania Railroad Station. For some time buses headed westbound had detoured Haverford Avenue by turning off at Narberth Avenue, and proceeding on Windsor Avenue to Essex.

Informed by the bus company early this month that it sought permission to make the route change, Burgess Henry A. Frye objected to the change being made unless and until provision is made for widening Haverford Avenue to accommodate the increased traffic at the bad corners of Essex and Forrest Avenues.

Without notification from the company, the westbound buses invaded Haverford Avenue's congested two-block business section last Saturday. The Burgess wrote W. J. Broderick at the company's Bryn Mawr headquarters Monday, partly as follows:

"There can be no question but that you have the 'authority' to do what you did; but there is plenty of room for doubt as to whether you would have been able to do it if the Windsor Avenue detour route which you recently abandoned had not been amicably agreed to. The Borough authorities had authorized the solicitor to protest at the hearing for the renewal of the bus company's application several years ago because of the overcrowded condition of Haverford Avenue at the station, and the merit of their contention was so obvious that the company did not risk an adverse decision.

"The traffic situation today is worse than it was even a few months ago. Therefore, the arguments which prevailed before will have more force today, and if a few weeks' trial confirms them, formal protest will be filed with the Public Service Commission, unless co-operation is received from the Pennsylvania Railroad, which recently acquired your company, and which you now represent.

"The problem can be effectively solved by lowering the crown or the surface of Haverford Avenue between Forrest and Essex Avenues, and widening the roadway. Parallel parking can then be es-

Dahlia Exhibit to Be Horse Show Feature

Horticultural Society Will Display
Flowers at Bryn Mawr
Fall Event.

As an added inducement to attend the Bryn Mawr Horse Show this fall, the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society's exhibition of dahlias will be held on the last two days, September 27 and 28. This is the first year for these events to be in conjunction as heretofore the flower show has been held at the Bellevue-Straford during the last week in September.

Flowers in thirty-six classes, four of them closed to amateurs, will be on display.

In addition to the dahlias, there will be two classes for gladiolus, and one each of asters, calendulas, cosmos, marigolds, zinnias and hybrid tea roses.

Co-operating with the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society in the exhibit are the Garden Club of Philadelphia, Four Counties Garden Club, the Weeders and the Gardeners.

David Rust will manage the show. Aiding him will be the exhibition committee of the Horticultural Society, whose chairman is W. Atlee Burpee, Jr. The other members are Mrs. William T. Elliott, Mrs. D. Braden Kyle, Mrs. Charles S. Starr, Fairman R. Furness, John Williams and Morris Lewis Stovell.

The following committee will represent the affiliated garden clubs:

Mrs. John H. Barnes, Mrs. Richard L. Barrows, Mrs. Arthur Brockie, Mrs. Benjamin Bullock, Miss Mary S. Feibiger, Mrs. Frederick Fraley, Mrs. Henry C. Gibson, Mrs. Truxton Hare, Mrs. Henry S. Jeanes, Mrs. J. Packard Laird, Mrs. Langdon Lea, Mrs. Frank H. Moss, Mrs. John H. Packard, Mrs. Thomas Reath, Jr., Mrs. E. Florence Rivinus, Mrs. T. Williams Roberts, Mrs. Charles Henry Scott, Jr., Mrs. Charles Willing, Mrs. Grahame Wood.

Mrs. Lafitte Represents Native State and Delivers Michigan Oration at Valley Forge Sunday Gathering

Tracing the eventful history of Michigan, telling of its vast resources and sounding the interest of that State in Valley Forge, Mrs. C. Miller Lafitte, of Rosemont, addressed a large throng at the Wolverine State Sunday on July 21 at the national shrine. Mrs. Lafitte, who was born in Michigan, represented her native State at the request of Governor Fred W. Green, who had appointed her a his official representative.

Services were held at the Washington Memorial Chapel at 3:15 P. M., in charge of the Rev. W. Herbert Burk, rector, and were attended by many former residents of Michigan who now make their home on the Main Line or in other Philadelphia suburbs. In addition, quite a number of folks from Michigan were present to aid with the exercises. A feature was the rendition of "Michigan, My Michigan," by the assemblage. Dr. Burk said it was the best-rendered State song he had heard given since the State Sundays have been inaugurated at Valley Forge.

Newtown Square Scores on Errors

Trims Narberth Nine 12 to 4 in Saturday's Fray in Borough.

GRAHAM QUITS PEAK

By John Uberti.
Eight errors for Narberth, and only two for Newtown Square, tells part of the story of Saturday's ball game at the borough playground, which went to the visitors by a score of 12 to 4. Newtown Square took advantage of the home team's blunders by wielding wicked bats in its second game since entering the Main Line pennant race.

The visitors had dropped a game to Berwyn previous to encountering Narberth's first half champs. Perhaps anticipating the gruesome session Saturday they had padded their cast with an effective battery: "Left" Schofield, ten-year veteran in the service of Hattboro, present leaders in the Philadelphia Suburban League race; and De Shula, Jimmie Noblitt's former partner in the Main Line League conflicts of past years, who, with the probable exception of Mickey Burns, is the most efficient "backstop" in the game. Ortlip, Bowman and Simms are Newtown Square's other recent importations.

Five hundred Narberth fans were startled when Harris, Babb and Martin, ordinarily impeccable on the field, commenced a race to excel Detroit's error-makers. Vernie Fleck, who made three clean swats at the disc, started things when his error in centerfield paved the way to two unearned runs for the visitors. Harris then committed three errors and Babb and Martin two apiece.

The game proved one thing—Narberth can whip its late conquerors any time they meet, despite their bolstered battery and line-up—if Narberth commits no errors.

Howard Graham, who was accorded ragged co-operation, was discouraged in the sixth inning, after having been nicked for six hits, from which, with the aid of six errors, the Newtown Square nine managed to bombard him for seven runs. Bill Durbin mounted the pinnacle in the pinch and allowed four hits and two passes, struck a man with a wild toss, and, with the help of two more blunders, watched five more markers cross the plate.

Newtown Square began scoring early when in the first inning it managed to assemble two runs, as Campbell, who had reached first when struck by a wild toss, and Bowman, whose admittance to the initial has-sock was made possible on Fleck's error, counted off Simm's bingle, which Babb muffed off third.

Tells of Assembly

A report of the Fiftieth District Assembly of Rotary International was given the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club at its Cynwyd meeting Tuesday noon by William H. Fowler, secretary of the local club. The Monday-and-Tuesday assembly, which he attended on Monday, was held in Wilmington, and one of the interesting features reported was an evening entertainment in Pierre S. duPont's Longwood Gardens estate.

Hold M. L. Tigers to 5-5 Deadlock

Young Scores Circuit Blow With
Two on in Last Inning.

DARKNESS ENDS FRACAS

By John Uberti.
Only the approaching ebony of the night which dimmed the activities of one of the most evenly matched combats of the year, making it necessary for the umpire to call the game, prevented the Davismen from triumphing over their dusky nemesis, the Main Line Tigers, in their second reunion this season. In the eighth and terminating session Ray Young, local catcher, smashed a vivid four-master over Perry's reach in centerfield, scoring Masters and Babb ahead of him. The tumultuous applause, mingled with whistles and shouts from the frenzied audience, could be heard for half a mile.

The Tigers, who were endeavoring to avenge themselves of their defeat at Preston last week, had the locals in high water for the first seven innings when they tallied five runs by counting twice in the fourth and thrice in

King's Daughters May Build Holiday House

If there is sufficient demand for a new King's Daughters' Holiday House it will be erected, and kept open for use for nine months of the year. That was one of the points decided at the directors' meeting of the King's Daughters Wednesday, July 10, at Valley Forge. Mrs. Fred E. Derby, North Narberth Avenue, Narberth, president, presided at the meeting, which was attended by sixty-five members of the organization. Several committees were appointed to attend to various items, including the erection of a new indestructible sign to be placed on the premises surviving the two and one-half acres of property around the Holiday House at Valley Forge, and the moving of the fence around the property to its proper place.

Officials Termed Morally Negligent in Failure to Warn of Tax Law Sales

Following a large number of requests of more details about the state of affairs regarding delinquent county taxes, first published in the form of a communication from five prominent Narberth citizens, Robert P. Wetherald, one of the signers, has prepared a second article on the subject.

Mr. Wetherald's article follows:

Readers of this paper have shown a great interest in the letter published June 28, 1929, dealing with the sale for taxes of a number of Narberth properties at ridiculously low prices. One property, worth $15,000, was sold for $24 to satisfy taxes amounting to $4.10. This property and many other properties were sold without the knowledge of the owners.

The old law, which permitted unseated property to be sold for unpaid taxes without notice to the owner, has since been in a measure corrected. But this old law is still bearing fruit. It would have been possible for interested

Merion Title to Merge B. C. Bank

National Bank Stockholders Sell
Shares at Twenty-four Dollars Profit.

NO PERSONNEL CHANGE

That it will merge the Bala-Cynwyd National Bank was the announcement made last week by the Merion Title and Trust Company. The latter concern, which maintains offices in Ardmore, Narberth and Bala-Cynwyd, is said to have been dickering for some time with stockholders of the national bank for the sale of shares.

The agreement consummated provides for exchange of one-half share of Merion Title stock and $24 cash for one share of Bala-Cynwyd stock, which is valued at $150. Merion Title stock is valued at $300. Bala-Cynwyd resources are over $480,000. Merion Title capital is $750,000, and its deposits exceed $8,500,000.

The title and trust company's acquisition of the national bank is said to be prompted by a desire to eliminate competition and to avoid "over-banking" Bala-Cynwyd, and to prevent any competitive plans for expansion. Rumors for some time had been current that the national bank planned to abandon its present site and erect a new, better equipped building across Bala Avenue, at the corner of Montgomery Pike.

Vice President Murdoch P. Clancy, of the Merion Title, declared this week that no change in Bala-Cynwyd National personnel is contemplated for the near future, but that the national bank's present office will probably be abandoned at some date to be announced later. The Merion Title's Cynwyd office occupies part of the Post Office building at the Cynwyd Station.

Good reason for B.-C. National stockholders selling their stock, in addition to the $24-a-share profit given them, is seen in the 16 per cent. dividend being paid by the Merion Title to its stockholders. Announcement of a regular quarterly dividend of 4 per cent. was made by Treasurer Daniel Leitch this week, following a meeting of the Board of Directors held Monday.

Henry B. McLaughlin is president of the Bala-Cynwyd National, and R. S. Davison, Jr., is cashier.

Officers of the Merion Title and Trust Company include Richard J. Hamilton, president; Dr. Herbert A. Arnold, vice president; Murdoch P. Clancy, vice president; Horatio L. Yocum, vice president; Daniel Leitch, treasurer; Horace W. Smiedley, secretary; David W. Charles, assistant treasurer; George W. Super, assistant secretary; Robert J. Boyd, assistant treasurer; William H. Fowler, assistant treasurer; William J. Curry, auditor; Harry C. Bare, vice president; Daniel J. Kennedy, title officer; Louis D. Peterson, trust officer; Arthur V. Grant and Horace Entriaken, assistant title officers, and A. Alfred Johnson, assistant trust officer.

Seventeen young men, the largest group ever to take the test, took the Civil Service Examination last Saturday given at the Narberth grammar school for postal duty in the Narberth Post Office. Whether or not they passed will not be known for about two months, according to Postmaster J. Bertram Nesper.

county officials to have administered the law, bad as it was, in a way which would have protected property owners from the outrageous injustice they are now forced to bear.

One official has done this in his administration as Treasurer of Lower Merion Township. Peter C. Hess spent many days each year collecting unpaid county taxes. As a result, not a property in Lower Merion Township was sold for taxes in 1928. Would that more public officials had the public interest so much at heart. In contrast with Mr. Hess' public-spirited attitude, the present Recorder of Deeds demanded at a Republican Organization meeting held recently in Haverford, that the most important local political offices be considered as "plums" to be passed around as political rewards and openly opposed the reelection of any officials simply on the grounds of ability and efficiency in office.

N. Board of Trade Plans Annual Outing, August 7

Wednesday, August 7, will be an off day for Narberth merchants. Taking advantage of the customary summer half-holiday the Narberth Board of Trade has proclaimed that stores will be closed all day while the business men stage a get-together.

Patrons are invited to join the storekeepers in the outing, whose start will be at 1:30 P. M. from the Narberth Theatre. The picnic will be held near Willow Grove. Attractions will include swimming and free refreshments provided by the Board of Trade.

Messrs. Marios Chios and R. R. Calkins head the committee on arrangements.

Pepper Heads Penn Tract Survey Body

Former Senator to Consider
University's Use of Henry
N. Woolman's Gift.

A plan for the use of the tract of land at Valley Forge, which the University of Pennsylvania recently acquired as a gift from Henry N. Woolman, Ardmore, president of the General Alumni Society, will be presented in the near future by a committee which has been organized to make a survey of the tract. Heading the committee is George Wharton Pepper, Devon, former United States Senator from Pennsylvania.

The committee, which includes trustees, administrative officers, faculty members and prominent alumni of the University, is a consolidation of the trustees' committee, appointed when the University formally accepted Mr. Woolman's gift, and of a later named advisory committee. Its personnel:

George Wharton Pepper, chairman; Provost Josiah H. Penniman, Thomas S. Gates, Charles Day, Morris L. Clothier, Henry N. Woolman, Dr. Cheesman A. Herrick, Vice Provost George William McClelland, Dr. J. P. W. Crawford, Dr. William E. Lingelbach, Dr. Joseph H. Willits, William O. Miller, comptroller of the University; E. Wallace Chadwick, chairman of the Alumni Committee of Valley Forge; Dr. John L. Haney, member of the same committee, and Frederick L. Ballard, trustee and chairman of the Managing Committee of the University Fund.

School Well Attended; Make Summer Repairs

That more children are making use of the community playgrounds and attending the summer school here than ever before was reported last Friday night at the July meeting of the Narberth School Board. Principal George H. Wilson declared the students, half through their term, are making progress under the tutelage of University of Pennsylvania School of Education teachers.

Plans were made by the Board to paint the interior walls and subject the schools to a general housecleaning before the fall term begins.

British, French and Americans Play Cricket

From Philadelphia last Saturday afternoon came many veterans of the world war who had fought in the British armies. They were entertained by Narberth, Ardmore and Wayne American Legionnaires at the grounds of the Montgomery Day School, Wynnewood. Also present were French veterans.

In a tug-of-war, the British veterans outpulled Narberth; then Wayne outpulled the British. There were also races and other sports events and watermelon, ice cream and soft drinks. At 5:30 P. M. a cricket match, scheduled for 3 o'clock, was played, after many members of Main Line posts had departed. With the aid of some British players the Narberth Legionnaires tallied 30 runs against the visitors' nine men, who in their turn at bat made 16 runs.

Will Serve on Jury

Mrs. Sarah Speakman, of Narberth, and Mrs. Mary Doremus, Lower Merion, will be among the nine women to serve on the forthcoming Montgomery County Grand Jury, which will examine evidence in the death of William Norman Heim, for which three members of the Hallowell family, of Ambler, are held.

Tennis Courts For Playground Is Aim

Recreation Board Hopes to Have Courts Ready for August Use.

WANT NEW GRANDSTAND

Improvements for the community playground and ball park, including tennis courts to be constructed at once, were contemplated by Narberth's new and active Recreation Board at its July meeting, held Monday.

Permission will be asked the Borough Council to build the courts in time for August use. Supplementing contributions that will be sought, the Recreation Board has funds already available to carry on the work. Dr. Leroy A. King, president of the board, appointed William H. Fretz and Kenneth L. M. Pray a committee to enlist Council's aid and to supervise building the courts. Co-operation of Director of Public Works George B. Supplee was also enlisted.

Several moves were made to improve conditions at the community ball field. It was decided to ask Council to repair the south bleachers grandstand immediately, and to make provision in its November budget for next year for erection of a new permanent stand. The action was taken after parts of the present bleachers had been declared unsafe.

Burgess Henry A. Frye was asked to secure better police supervision of all games played by the Narberth Ball Club in order to control the conduct of children in the stands and on the field. In addition, dogs were declared a nuisance, and their owners will be warned by signs to be posted to keep them from the field. It was pointed out that several times this season the players have been annoyed by dogs roving the field in competitive quest of flies.

In an effort to prevent the field from being littered with bottles, papers and other debris, the board voted to exert its power to prevent the sale of peanuts, candies, etc., on the grounds. Licensed vendors cannot be prevented from doing business on the nearby streets, it was pointed out, but vending will not be permitted on the playground.

At a recent meeting of the board a committee had been appointed to investigate the Recreation Board's powers, duties, responsibilities and relations with Borough Council and the

in Presenting U. S. Historical Event.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac C. Sutton and their son, I. Crawford, Jr., sailed on the steamship Samaria on Saturday to attend the National Boy Scout Jamboree at Arrowe Park, England.

Mr. Sutton's two sons, James and Crawford, are at the Jamboree with the Ardmore troop. Mr. Sutton is attending as a member of the National Boy Scout Council and will be chief of the staff of the Jamboree Camp Directors. He is also commissioner of Delaware and Montgomery Counties.

Mr. Sutton will direct a pageant showing the history of scouts in this country, including the Indians, Buckskin men, covered wagon, plainsmen and trappers, leading up to Dan Beard, who is the National Boy Scout Commissioner, and will also attend the Jamboree. He will be represented as handing over the ideals of the wilderness country of yesterday to the Boy Scouts of today to carry on.

The Boy Scouts of Ardmore and Bala-Cynwyd will take part in the Indian pageant.

Narberth Boy Honored

William F. Dougherty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Dougherty, 412 Anthwyn Road, Narberth, a student at the Fort Meyer, Va., cavalry camp, of the Citizens' Military Training Camps, has been named a student non-commissioned officer in the Third Cavalry.

The officers of the Third Cavalry, assisted by the Reserve Officers, are instructors of the 25 boys at camp and the promotion of Dougherty was made in recognition of his aptitude in horsemanship and the fundamentals of military science.

More About Faulty Property Tax Laws

Unfortunately, most public officials are content with the observance of the mere letter of the law. The old law, for instance, affecting properties in arrears for county taxes required that they be advertised in three county papers and sold by the County Treasurer within two years of the assessment of the taxes. The requirements of this statute were carried out in a literal manner. Many Narberth properties were included in this sale, yet the papers in which they were advertised were the "Norristown Register," "North Penn Review" (Lansdale) and the "Jenkintown Times Chronicle."

Another interesting sidelight is the confusion in the tax records at Norristown. Several Narberth properties sold in June, 1924, for taxes, have recently been cleared by the production of tax receipts showing that the county had no right to sell them. How many others were improperly sold which cannot now be cleared because the original tax receipt has been lost? Negligence has also been shown in the assessment of properties. The Narberth property, now valued at $15,000 and sold for $24, was assessed as "unseated" (unimproved) in 1918 and again in 1921 though "seated" in both years. If it had been properly assessed the sale could not have been made until the county had first made an effort to collect the taxes. Is there no way to hold public officials accountable for such negligence costing property owners enormous loss or costly litigation?

A letter printed in the Evening Bulletin, July 12, 1929, sheds considerable light on this subject and indicates that even under the amended law property owners may suffer violation of their rights.

A County's Real Estate Dealing
"Sir: I note the letter of R. P. W., wherein it is complained that his real estate in a nearby county was sold by the County Tax Treasurer without prior notice for unpaid taxes. Enough cases in recent months have been called to my notice to cause me to wonder just how far the scheming manipulators in back of the buying movement at Tax Treasurer's sales will be permitted to go.

"Upon making a painstaking search of the record in one case, wherein suit has been since instituted, I discovered that the favorite trick of the manipulators behind the scheme was to cause a tax bill for the wrong lot to be sent to the owner. The latter, without checking the lot and section numbers, would make a remittance of the amount demanded by the Tax Collector, who, of course, never receives payment for the lot on which the taxpayer had intended to make payment. To facilitate their plan of action, I found another link in the chain. The assessor's lists were in a most haphazard condition. I tried of assessing names of people who 'don't pay their taxes.' Not infrequently the manipulators suggested names of fictitious persons who were assessed readily as owners.

"The fictitious persons are named as the owners of the lots in those cases where one received tax bill for the wrong lot. Two years transpire and the statutory requirements as to notice are satisfied by the fictitious person being named as the owner of the real estate about to be sold for delinquent taxes. The real owner's name appears nowhere, and of course the latter would at no time be expected to recognize his lot, and the real estate is bought in for a paltry sum. Your correspondent would be making a mistake in not proceeding to take affirmative action to have the County Tax Treasurer's deed to the purchaser set aside.

"PHILA. LAWYER."

Misses Julia and Catherine Robison, of 503 Dudley Avenue, have just returned from Collegeville after spending some time there visiting their grandfather, Mr. Joseph Robinson.

Mr. A. B. Macoley, of Meeting House Lane, whose birthday was last Monday, was guest at a surprise party at Pencoyd Farm last Tuesday evening. Thirty guests were present.

UNCLE CY'S COLUMN

Starting Something.

Fired by the controversial correspondence instituted by the publication of the views on prohibition suggestions have been pouring in to me from my friends who know, as Dr. Chalfant would like to, who Uncle Cy is and from the staff of the papers. They urge me to start more controversial ideas. One friend suggests that I campaign for the legalizing of "big track" racing and betting, pari-mutuel or otherwise, and although I might get up some steam over the idea, my advancing years urge me to tranquility and I am loath to force myself to entertain more mental turmoil.

One of the reporters suggested, as a reporter would, that I present the case for swimming without bathing suits. Being a believer in the natural process of evolution, I have cause to think that such is about to be the case. To prove this take a picture of the "but-terfly" of the nineties ready for her bathing and compare it to the "flapper" of the late twenties ready for her swim; then proceed to an imaginary picture of the forties. My inclination would be to defend the wearers of clothes, if I didn't know that too many make swimming difficult. Having a rather impossible figger and a suggestion of a bay window, I much prefer to swim draped, and, feeling that way, think that every one else ought to do so in order that I won't feel too conspicuous.

A third person suggests that I defend the precocity and sophistication of modern youth on the grounds that their knowledge of what he terms "Life" will equip them to become better citizens than we have been. Perhaps there is a germ in that. Does anyone want to contribute a column on it? If you have a personal axe to grind here is the grindstone. I'd much rather just turn the wheel than to do that and hold the axe both.

R. N. Thomas, Jr., one time conductor and originator of the "From the Saddle" column, in speaking about the recent communications says that if Jay House were writing the column, which he may whenever he wants to, he would make the usual wage (i. e., a week's pay check) at the hypothetical odds (8 to 5 if I remember) that when it was all boiled down there wouldn't be much worth looking at left. Maybe it was the hypothetical wage at the usual odds. You'll forget too when you've passed sixty.

I think Jay House would say: "What of it?"

Do you ever read System? It is a magazine for big business men and those who are going to be. Here is an item from a recent issue:

Congratulations for perfect attendance records help employees of the Chicago Mail Order Company to realize that the company appreciates promptness and regularity in attendance. Once a month employees who keep their attendance and punctuality record at the 100 per cent. mark receive a card of thanks in their pay envelope. From the message printed on the card employees learn the benefits to be derived from being on the job promptly and faithfully.

Now isn't that sweet? If it were my mail order house I'd give them a bunch of sweet peas once a month and kiss them on both cheeks after the fashion of French generals.

Aunt Cy has announced her intention to run down from the northern mountains for a few days this week just to be sure that everything (possibly meaning the Uncle) is in order, so today a great campaign of dusting and straightening is in order. The summer bachelor always has his revelry interrupted by sordid realism just when life seems most tranquil and serene. Not that I won't be glad to see Aunt Cy, but I should have preferred to go up there to see her.

Just wait till she sees what the neighbor's dog has done to our vegetable garden? It is just as well that the neighbor is away on a long cruise.

CORNELIUS A. RUDOLPH

Cornelius A. Rudolph, 701, former owner of the Ashland Paper Mills, died Monday at his home in Lower Merion Township, near West Manayunk, after an illness of eight weeks. He was a son of the late Sebastian A. Rudolph, who founded the mills in 1868.

Mr. Rudolph, who graduated from La Salle College in the year of the Centennial, is survived by his wife, Mrs. Clara Dixon Rudolph; a son, Sebastian A. Rudolph, 2d, of Wynnewood; six daughters, Sister Alberta Joseph, of the Sisters of Mercy; Mrs. Pierre Smith, of Trenton, N. J., and Mrs. Jane Rudolph Samson, of George M. Dorsey, Mrs. William F. Emory and Mrs. William J. Walsh, of this city; four sisters and twenty-eight grandchildren.

Requiem Mass was celebrated yesterday morning at St. Mary's of the Assumption Church, Manayunk. Burial was in Westminster Cemetery.

GEORGE PARKINSON

George Parkinson, who died at the age of 77 at his home, 106 Essex Avenue, Narberth, the last of June, was a prominent patent lawyer in Cincinnati for many years. After living in retirement a few years in Massachusetts, he returned to patent work in Philadelphia. The past winter and spring he seemed to be gaining strength steadily, when the end came suddenly, after only a few days of acute illness.

Mr. Parkinson had unusual mental powers, was an omnivorous reader and lived so quietly in Narberth that few people knew him. He was laid to rest in Woodstock, Vt. He is survived by his widow.

Sell Truck

Richards-Fisher Company, Cynwyd Ford dealers, effected delivery early this week of a 1½-ton panel delivery truck of the new Ford model to Frank Mariani, Narberth.

LETTERS TO UNCLE CY

Two weeks ago J. J. Cabrey, prominent Narberth citizen, sounded warning that he intended taking a crack at prohibition, following publication in these columns of a series of articles on the subject by Uncle Cy and letters of dissent by prohibitionists. "Our attitude shall be," Mr. Cabrey said, "that of a total abstainer (even yet) who has tried for twenty years to advance the cause of temperance as best he could and who regards the present effort for legislative morality as anti-Christian, anti-American and as a fearful blight on a beloved nation." His contemplated letter follows:

The Other Side of the Question

To the Editor:

If there is no difference between a thief and a man who wants to drink liquor, as the letter you published last week indicated, then those who oppose prohibition have no case and there ought to be an end of the matter accordingly. The rub is, however, that there is no semblance of an agreement on that point and neither is there likely to be.

Look where you will you find no fresh facts advanced in an effort to make men change their age-old convictions. The pulpit which espouses the dry cause applies to the politicians to support its positive position. There seems to be no recognition that moral procedure needs a higher source than that. Henry Ford is also brought in by the heels to give substance to the novel doctrine. It is apparently of no significance that this untutored man's chief concern on earth is to produce a highly economic animal. The pressure of the other side of life manifests itself in him by the acquisition of better things he calls antiques. With recognized spiritual equations, he has no visible part.

Meanwhile, the man who depends on religion as his guide in coming to accurate conclusions regarding the permanent welfare of humanity is bewildered and bereft. He has been brought up to believe that the policeman's club was of dubious value as he fought his way to God and eternity. He always knew that gluttony was a capital sin, but he was also under the impression that taking a drink might quite well be a beneficent act. He was even of the opinion that moderate tipping had indeed many excellent effects.

He scans history and the record seems to prove his case. He learned in his youth of the first great Miracle. It was a happy time at Canaan. He is exaltedly mindful of the Last Supper and of its prodigious influence on all the centuries. He remembers also that his Saviour whilst on earth was called a wine-bibber. He sees in the archives that all the religious leaders liked their stimulant, Luther his beer, Calvin his wine and Wesley his rum. Even the Puritans, he notes, failed to cut that joy out of their lives. All the time, too, he knew that evil lurked in the abuse of the cup, but he depended on the force of religion and education, the inherent desire for self-improvement which the Creator planted in the breast of all mankind, to handle that feature of the case, and in his own generation he had ample reason to believe that extraordinary progress was being made.

Then comes the smash. What had been going on was all wrong and what had not been a sin at all was now a grievous sin. It was altogether too large an order for him to dissolve quickly. He was not yet ready to believe that 1918 years were all awry and neither have the last ten helped him in his dilemma. He wants to be a good man and do what is right, but he is cognizant of why he is a man, of his destiny as a man and the account he must give of his stewardship. He thinks of many things, major and incidental, and among the latter he cannot help being scornful of the methods and manners of some of those who seek to lead along the new path. He explores the background of the Bishop Cannon, the Willebrandt woman and the Tom-Tom Feelin, and he sees nothing in it which warrants him in substituting their banner for his established standards.

He calls out in meeting that he believes an improvement might come with change, as is his right to do, and immediately he is bespattered and besmirched as a "booze lover." He is forthwith associated with mythical "liquor interests" and with the "disloyalists," the fact that he is a distinguished and eminent president of a nationally important medical body making no difference at all.

In the magazines he beholds the chief dry spokesman heralding a clarification request to have the marines force their martial way through the multitude, and he observes that nearly two hundred contestants for the Durant prize recommended capital punishment for Volstead violators.

Our man, out of joint with all these dread things, feels it is time to fight. He claims that the tripped-up condition of American life generally has its roots in the new order of "knock-them-down and drag-them-out." He wants a better deal for the times in which he lives. He discerns none of the mercy or patience of God in this fierce scheme of legislative inhibition. He knows where such things have led in the ages which preceded him. He knows they are again doomed to pitiable failure, but he bitterly resents that his precious days, good for so much else, must be wasted as fanaticism holds forth against the real progress which is possible. He sees red when he is asked to gulp down this nauseous dose on the basis of futile figures and me-e references to the alleged improvement in the condition of the poor, never shall know until a proper modicum of Christian charity and justice is restored to them.

J. J. CABREY.

Is Your Furnace CLEAN?

A furnace man will operate so much better if clean. Soot and dirt collect very heavily in the fire-box after a season's use. The longer the dirt is allowed to remain the harder it becomes to remove it.

Our Service Department, armed with a Vacuum Cleaner, has been instrumental in cleaning a great many furnaces in the community this summer. It is possible for us to take on the cleaning of a great many more before the furnace-feeding season begins. So ask yourself, "Is my furnace clean?" and if the answer is "no"—send for our vacuum-cleaning department—you will be well pleased with the finished job.

Insurance Facts

(By J. Alden Tift, Merion, president of Tift, Lauer & Co.)

Types of automobile insurance might well be described in the following conversation:

Public Liability

"What does my automobile liability insurance cover?"

"It protects you against loss and expense due to your legal liability for killing or injuring the public, due to the ownership, operation and maintenance of an automobile. The minimum limits are $5000 for one person hurt or killed, and $10,000 for more than one person hurt or killed in any one accident. If the loss can be settled amicably by a cash payment the insurance company pays it. If not, the company defends you and pays the verdict, in addition to the Court costs and legal expenses. Higher limits are recommended because of the high verdicts and the greater probability of accidents due to the increasing number of cars. You can secure this for a very small additional premium."

"If my twelve-year-old son should have an accident would I be protected under liability insurance?"

"No, because the policy states that it does not protect you if your car is driven by any person under the age fixed by law, or under the age of sixteen years in any event. The car is not to be rented or to carry passengers for hire unless a special policy is secured."

"You are not supposed to use your car in a speed contest or race. Do not make a practice of towing other cars or trailers unless you get an endorsement permitting you to do so. Of course, incidental assistance to automobiles on the road is permitted. Admit only to your insurance company if you are liable for an accident, as a public admission at the time of the accident might prejudice the rights of the insurance company in Court and violate your policy. Always get the names of witnesses if possible, as you will realize the importance of this after the accident."

Property Damage

"What does Automobile Property Damage mean?"

"It is practically the same form of insurance as Automobile Public Liability insurance, except that it applies to the property of others damaged by your car and for which property you may be legally liable."

"No matter how small the accident, it is extremely important to notify us of the particulars at once."

Collision Insurance

"What is Collision Insurance?"

"It is a policy agreeing to pay for the actual damages sustained to your car by collision, whether the accident was due to your negligence or not. The policy does not pay for blowouts or punctures, but it does pay for serious damage to tires if the accidental collision damages some other part of your car at the same time."

"Suppose I have a collision loss, which totally wrecks my car, how much money do I receive?"

"You are paid the actual cash value of the car at the time of loss."

"Suppose I prefer to pay a lower premium and instead of you paying for every little claim I decide not to have Full Coverage Collision Insurance, but want you to guarantee that I cannot have a loss which will cost me more than $50; in other words, your company will reimburse me for all collision losses after deducting $50?"

"In that event the premium will be lower and if you prefer to assume the first $100 of each collision loss the premium will be even lower."

"A reduction in Collision Insurance is allowed if your car is equipped with bumpers which bear the label of the Underwriters' Laboratories."

Fire and Theft Insurance

"Tell me about automobile fire and theft insurance."

"You may purchase automobile fire insurance separately, but if you should desire automobile theft insurance it will be necessary to purchase it with automobile fire protection."

"What protection do I get?"

"The fire and theft policy agrees to pay you the actual value of your car at the time of loss by fire or theft, less depreciation, but in no event more than the amount mentioned in the face of the policy."

"The amount of insurance stated in the fire and theft policy is used as a basis upon which to determine the premium and to give an approximate idea as to the value of the car at the time the insurance was issued."

"Suppose I only have a partial loss, do I have to let the insurance company repair the car at its designated service station?"

"No, you may have the car repaired where you desire, but the company requests that its adjuster be allowed to see the car before repairs are made."

"Tell me what the fire and theft policy will not cover."

"It will not pay for loss of robes, personal effects or extra bodies, and it will not pay if someone else has an interest in your car and you have failed to have his name mentioned in the policy. It will not pay for extra parts unless the policy specifically states that it does."

"If someone in your employ or in your household should steal your car the policy would not pay for your loss."

Automobile Windstorm Damage

"Many cars are damaged directly by being blown over and smashed or by the wind ripping off the roof."

"For a few cents extra you may add to your fire and theft insurance a clause which reads as follows:

"This policy covers against loss due to direct loss or damage caused by tornado, cyclone, windstorm, hail, earthquake, explosion, accidental and external discharge or leakage of water, excluding damage caused by rain, sleet, snow, flood, rupture of tires and explosion within the combustion chamber of an internal combustion engine."

"Automobile insurance should be purchased in the strongest and most reliable stock insurance companies. You then have protection in a company which will be in existence even if the damage suit is not started until years after the accident. Such a company will have ample reserves and surplus and, in addition, the capital is available to pay all losses."

Burgess Frye Objects to Rerouting of Buses

established, the approaches to the station removed out of the line of through travel, and a stop made possible on the railroad property for westbound buses. This can be accomplished through the removal of the tree and the wooden structure attached to the north side of the station.

"The Borough is prepared to do its share at any time, but until the thing can be done right, it will be compelled to deal with traffic as it finds it and reserve its right to protest against the present bus route if need be."

As matters stand, protest will be filed against the recent addition to Haverford Avenue congestion—unless the railroad which now owns the bus line, consents to the Borough plan of widening the street. If consent is given, civic agitation against the wooden structure on the north side of the station will have prevailed, and the business street will be widened and paved by the Borough at the expense of part of the railroad's land.

And the old elm tree, after which Elm Station was named many years ago, will vanish, to make way for Narberth's residents' and visitors' automobiles.

Students Visit Du Pont Plant

Members of the Science Department of Villanova College summer school, accompanied by Reverend F. X. Coan, A. M., O. S. A., Professor of Biology, and John M. Ford, B. S., Professor of Botany, were the guests last Thursday of the Du Pont Corporation at Longwood Gardens. About forty-five students of the summer school session made the trip.

This is the first of a series of trips that will be made by students of the biology and botany classes, by which they will make a study of the vegetative life located in various parts of the State.

Cairns & Mahan Sell Tract For Development

The new semi-detached dwelling at 713 Cricket Avenue, Ardmore, has been sold for H. J. Hurley Company by Cairns & Mahan to David W. Wallace, subject to a mortgage of $5300. The same brokers have sold 2808 and 2810 St. Mary's Road for F. H. Mahan to Leo M. Drahm for about $7000 each.

Also a plot of ground with frontage on Aubrey Avenue and Georges Lane, Ardmore, containing little less than two acres, has been sold to H. W. Rickabaugh by Cairns & Mahan. The price was $25,000. The purchaser will improve with twenty semi-detached dwellings.

800 Mount Birds

During the past six months over 800 permits have been issued to persons within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to have protected birds mounted which had been killed accidentally. Most of the birds included song and insectivorous species and nearly all were killed during the spring migration period. Attracted to towns and cities by the bright lights, many met death by flying against telephone wires and buildings.

While the Game Commission willingly issues such permits to those who come into possession of birds legally, such persons are required to submit with their application an affidavit setting forth the circumstances under which the bird came into their possession. In addition to this, if the bird happens to be a migratory species, a permit from the Federal Biological Survey is also necessary.

Hedgerow Will Present 'Uncle's Been Dreaming'

For its fourth presentation next Wednesday evening at the Anthony Wayne Theatre the Hedgerow Theatre has chosen "Uncle's Been Dreaming," an old-fashioned comedy by Karl Vollmoeller, after a story by Fyodor Dostoevsky.

Whether by design or accident the three plays that the Hedgerow Theatre has thus far presented at the Anthony Wayne Theatre have been comedies—both comedies of the widest possible variance, both in treatment and in setting. "Poker Face" represented the Chicago gunman in an at-home conventional and unobtrusive mood. Shaw's "Misalliance" poked fun at the English merchant with intellectual and declamatory proclivities, and at English respectability in general. "The Devil's Disciple," while melodramatic in plot, contained enough comedy aimed at the puritanism and patriotism of the early American colonists and the British war generals in the unfriendly atmosphere of the American Revolution.

"Uncle's Been Dreaming," although the work of a German writer, has its setting in Mordasoff, a small Russian provincial city, where the inhabitants are overawed by Russian aristocracy. This aristocracy, in "Uncle's Been Dreaming," is personified by a Prince who is referred to as "not really a person at all, but a sort of general effect—half a corpse that has escaped being buried by an oversight." This particularly difficult role of the Prince is enacted by Jasper Deeter, the director of the Hedgerow Theatre. Marie Alexandrovna, the scheming self-assured mother with a penchant for fine phrases, who tries to marry the Prince off to her daughter, is played by Miss Dudley Vaughan. Sinaida, her daughter, is played by Miss Kay Roma; Afanassij Matveitch, the ineffectual husband of Maria, is played by David Drinker. Paul Alexandrovitch, Sinaida's suitor and the Prince's "nephew," is played by Jesse Oser. Nastasia, the eavesdropping relative, is played by Joan Sweidel; Glafira, the servant is played by Gretchen Anton-Smith. Sofia Patrovna, the Colonel's lady, is played by Sue Platt. Anna Nikolaiievna, the wife of the Public Prosecutor, is played by Ida Patigalia, and the ladies of the haute volée are played by Miriam Phillips, Mildred Lewis and Jean Kritzer.

"Uncle's Been Dreaming" had its first American performance at the Hedgerow Theatre on September 1, 1928. Its performance at the Anthony Wayne Theatre will mark its fifteenth American performance.

Will Honor Baseball Star

Connie Mack's all-around infielder, Jimmy Dykes, will be honored by his home town folks on Saturday, August 3, when a delegation of the Oakmont-South Ardmore Business Men's Association will present him with a gift at Shibe Park.

Merion Estate Sold

An all-stone residence and garage, on South Highland Avenue, Merion, together with about three-quarters of an acre of ground, has been sold by the estate of Ida Muller through H. V. Massey & Co. to R. H. Wilkinson. The property was held for sale at $48,000.

Nine games will be played in the first half, and in the second half and then the World Series. At present Brennan leads by a big margin, but an upset may be looked for from Smith's team.

The Community Playground downed the School Playground group in the finals of the volley ball tournament and were treated royally to ice cream. The winning team was composed of the following: Wilson (captain), Parke, Nordblom, Paige, Cane, Dautbert and Wilson.

The winners of the original doll show of last Thursday who were presented with ribbons were Margaret McCafferty, first prize, for a beet doll; Mary Wesper, second prize, for a candy doll; and Dorothy Hood, third prize, for a wooden doll dressed as a bride.

A soap bubble contest was held Wednesday morning for children under 11 years. The object of the contest was to see which team could blow the most bubbles over a net, stretched one yard above the ground. The teams which were lined up one yard back from the net were given two halves of five minutes each. The contest was won by Ingeborg team, composed of Mary Case, Jean Bundel, Allene Kirscht and Eileen Fergusson.

At both playgrounds work in handicraft, raffia and reed weaving keep the children busy. Watch chains, belts, table pads and baskets are being made. At the school many are knitting wool pocketbooks.

Next Tuesday a lawn croquet tournament will be held at both playgrounds, the winners to meet in the finals at the community playground.

On August 5 a pet circus will be held, to which all boys and girls who own pets of any kind are invited to enter. Canaries, dogs, cats, parrots, pigeons may be shown, and all are urged to start training the animals. Following the circus there will be a parade. If you have a police dog, dress him up in a uniform and yourself also, or put a little bonnet on your kitty and dress yourself likewise. There will be awards for everyone bringing pets.

Next Friday there will be a Hop Scotch tournament for all those eleven years old and under.

Kurtz Central Airport Pilot

Howard Kurtz, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Kurtz, 119 Argyle Road, Ardmore, has been assigned as pilot at the Central Airport. Howard, who is a graduate of Kelly Field and holder of a transport license, joined the Ludington Company forces soon after his recent return home.

Some Comeback

After testing a somewhat surprising defeat on Saturday, 6-3, at the hands of the Diamond Kings, Jerry Underwood's Autocar Giants played the same outfit on Monday and defeated the "kings" by the overwhelming shutout score of 13-0.

College Gives Bird Masque

"Sanctuary," a Bird Masque, was presented Wednesday evening on the campus of Ellis College, Newtown Square, by the students and teachers of the institution. The presentation was followed by exhibitions of the summer school classes in arts and crafts, sewing, dressmaking and domestic science. Miss Frances E. Smedley, arts and crafts instructor, and Miss Helen S. Simmons, teacher of expression and dramatic art, were in charge of the program.

Newtown Square Scores Win on Narberth Errors

Fleck, Babb and Martin crammed the bases in the following inning, but Vernie was the only hombre permitted to score, as Burns lifted a sacrifice fly, while Campbell strolled in the alien half of the third, stole second and went on to third when Graham threw to second, which base was unguarded at the time, in the attempt to head him off.

Narberth went on the short end of a 5-1 mark-up in the fourth when the invaders increased their big lead on the champions by sending over a pair of runs. Hinus went to the initial sack on Harris' error, but Orlip and Schofield dispatched a single and a double, respectively, two bases emptying upon the latter's offering.

Both teams hung up goose eggs in the fifth, but in the subsequent frame, Narberth was given a dose of its own medicine when Newtown Square executed its favorite trick by sending nine men into its second round, when seven runs were scored. Babb was charged with his second error of the game, allowing Orlip to get to first; Schofield singled to centre, putting Orlip on third; and Kearney made first when Martin failed to grasp Babb's high throw. The assist was awarded to Martin with the argument that he should have jumped for the interception.

Babb walked off the diamond at Martin's blunder, and the veteran of baseball went to the third corner. Campbell hit to Graham and was out, but Bowman walked, forcing Orlip home. Simms went to first on Harris' next error (allowing the ball to go through his legs) and Schofield scored.

Graham abdicated the apex and Durbin went to the rescue, but until he struck his stride was hit just as freely. MacGurro doubled, allowing Kearney and Bowman to count. De Shula hit to Durbin and was out, but Hinus walked, cramming the lanes; and Orlip, who came to bat for the second time that inning, sent out a one-bagger, Simms and MacGurro crossing the pentagon. Schofield ambled, jamming the lanes again, and Orlip tallied the seventh run when he was automatically forced home when Durbin struck Kearney with a wild toss. Campbell earned the last out by missing three in a row.

Durbin held Newtown Square to no runs for the last three frames. Harris scored a lone point in the home-half of the sixth when he doubled and went to third on Vernie's single, and Mulligan and Harris crossed with runs number three and four in the seventh when they went over the disc on Fleck's third hit of the game.

Bergh Will Probated

In his will admitted to probate at Norristown, Charles Victor Bergh, late of "The Homestead," Merion, disposes of an estate valued at $244,000 "and upward."

Bequests of jewelry and other heirlooms are made to children and friends. To his wife, a son, Charles, and a daughter, Bella, are given $5000 each absolutely. Sufficient of the estate is to be placed in trust to earn an income of $625 a month, which is to be paid to the wife for the maintenance of the home and the education of the children. Income from testator's stock in the Commercial Coal Mining Company is to be paid to the children. The wife and John B. Evans, of Evansburg, Pa., are named trustees and executors. The will was executed May 12, 1919.

Reagan New Villanova Coach

Villanova's football coaching staff has been augmented by the signing of Robert Reagan, former Notre Dame star center, who will assist Coach Harry Stuhldreher and Ed Hunsinger, also Notre Dame luminaries. Reagan, whose home is in Cannonsburg, Pa., played center of the 1921, 1922 and 1923 teams and will assist Hunsinger with the line candidates. He has a three-year contract.

Reagan, since graduating, has coached at the University of Utah, University of Chattanooga and Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, where he assisted Elmer Layden, one of the four horsemen, last year. Stuhldreher was quarterback on the famed horsemen backfield.

OUT FOR COMMISSIONER

JOHN WILLIAMS

At the request of many friends, several of whom are strong politically, John Williams, 346 Lancaster Avenue, Haverford, has become a candidate for Commissioner from the West Ardmore District.

Mr. Williams is a member of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, several patriotic organizations, American Rose Society, Lower Merion Police Pension Fund Association, Philadelphia Sketch Club and Merion Cricket Club. He is a Spanish War Veteran and served in that conflict with Battery "A," Light Artillery, under General Grant, a son of the famous Civil War commander, in Porto Rico. Mr. Williams was connected with the Ordnance Department during the World War.

Three Pencoyd Clubs Join in Annual Picnic at Woodside Park

Tomorrow (Saturday) is the date set for Pencoyd's annual picnic. The Neighborhood Club, the Women's Community Club and the "Jinx," or Juniors, have made plans to unite in a day's outing at Woodside Park, commencing at 10 A. M. In addition to the park's amusement devices there will be games and refreshments furnished by the club's representatives.

Entertainment is in the hands of Mrs. R. S. Tomb and Mrs. Alton B. Macoley and food will be provided through the efforts of a committee consisting of Mrs. Charles Calvert, Mrs. W. M. O. Edwards and Mrs. Martin Moody. The men's committee on arrangements consists of Ralph Clegg and A. B. Macoley. The Juniors, of whom John Maxwell is president, are represented on the committee by Miss Hannah H. Maxwell.

Mrs. Martin Moody is president of the women's club. Samuel Blakley was elected president of the Men's or Neighborhood Club at its regular meeting Monday night.

Penshurst Ayrshires Rank Among Leaders

During May the 123 Ayrshires owned by Penshurst Farm, Narberth, ranked among the leading producers in the United States on their average production of 830 pounds of 4.22 per cent. milk, 35.02 pounds of butterfat, tested under the rules of the Ayrshire Herd Test.

The outstanding productions for individuals were those of Penshurst Belite, a four-year-old that produced 1703 pounds of milk, 92.30 pounds of butterfat; Penshurst Snowbird, a five-year-old, that produced 164 pounds of milk, 75.43 pounds of butterfat; Penshurst Bridget, a six-year-old, that produced 1775 pounds of milk, 72.24 pounds of butterfat, and Penshurst Queen Nell, that produced 1456 pounds of milk, 70.91 pounds of butterfat as a six-year-old.

Narberth Holds Tigers to Tie in Return Game

CONTINUED FROM THE FIRST PAGE the seventh, while the Davismen tabbed one each in the second and third frames, only to tie the situation in the last off Young's circuit blow. This was the second game in what is scheduled to be a three-game series.

Walter Masters, pride of the local pitching staff, started in propitious manner against the Ardmore clan by holding them hitless for the first three innings, during which time he felled two batsmen on strikes. But the Tigers assembled two hits and a walk in the following frame to score the first two runs of the game. Brown singled to centre and stole second. White ambled and Brown went to third on a passed ball. Link's clout to left was deep enough to allow Brown and White to cross.

Two doubles and two errors entitled the visitors to three runs in the seventh. Mowyer was safe when Martin muffed his grounder right near the hassock, and went on to second when a spectator interfered with the ball. King was chucked out, Graham to Martin, but Brown caromed a turbulent two-ply smash into right field, allowing Bowyer to count. After Brown crossed the pentagon from the keystone on Harris' blunder, White was given admittance to the initial sack off the local second baseman's second error. Link hit to Gilfillan and was out and Bank cracked the second double for the invaders, scoring White, who had stolen the keystone.

A pair of blunders aided Narberth in marking up their first point in the second inning. King muffed Masters' aerial and Babb also made first on the outfielder's error, but Blessing singled, shipping in Masters.

Connell contributed the lone run gained in the subsequent canto when he doubled to left, stole second and third and dashed to the plate when Bowyer failed to hold Bound's fast ball.

Then came Ray Young's surprising bingle in the eighth, which averted a calamitous defeat. Martin reached first on Link's error, but Masters forced him off second, Ling to Brown. Babb hit a double to centre and Gene Davis, who batted for Graham, was the victim of a strikeout. It was then that Young "spilled the dope," as is sportively said, by connecting with Bound's fast twirl, which he sent for a long
